
Mapping Social Work Education & Training Programs in Kenya: A Baseline Survey

Phyllis Muraguri¹, Mary Gitau² and Wanja Ogongi³

¹Technical University of Kenya; gacheke09@gmail.com

²Clarke University, USA; mwgitau@gmail.com

³Millersville University of Pennsylvania, USA; uhuru.wetu@gmail.com

Abstract

This session will present the results of a study that sought to gather information on social work education and training, as well as establish baseline data on existing social work programs in institutions of higher learning in Kenya. Utilizing a survey, data were collected on the length of training offered, number of students in each program, the number of faculty members and their educational background. Understanding the landscape of social work education and training in Kenya is essential information that can be used by the Association of Social Work Educators in Kenya (ASWEK) to guide social work education programming, inform policy decisions, identify issues and trends, inform research, and advocacy among other needs.

Keywords: social work education, training programs, Kenya

